About the Founder, Me

I am a blessed person.

Spiritually, I've been blessed as a practicing Christian, a 4th generation member of The Church of Christ of the Apostolic Faith, the same apostolic/pentecostal church my great-grandparents joined 100+ years ago.

Physically, I'm blessed as an 8th generation, native-born American of the African diaspora. I'm blessed to be a widow who was happily married for 36 years, 8 months and 22 days to an incredible man, Charles "CMadison" Nabrit. And CMadison and I were incredibly blessed by the opportunity to parent and then homeschool three fabulous sons, twins Charles and Damon who arrived in 1980, and Evan who arrived in 1982.

Academically, I've been blessed by my parents' willingness to help pay for my education first at Columbus School for Girls and then Wellesley College. And I was further blessed by their willingness to help CMadison fund my quest for that terminal degree at the Moritz College of Law at The Ohio State University.

Professionally, I continue to be blessed by decades of successful operation with my consulting firm, PN&A, Inc. www.nabrit.com/pna. I started PN&A, Inc. in 1986. Next in 1990 I convinced CMadison we could stay married and work together, then in 2007 we welcomed first Damon our tech guru and later Charles as researcher and presenter into the business and finally in 2009 Evan, our youngest and a freakishly brilliant artist, agreed to manage our freelance graphics and client videos. I'm blessed to see PN&A, Inc., a black, women-owned, family-run, information-based business moving into the 2nd generation.

Intellectually, I've been blessed to write several books, including Morning by Morning: How We Home-Schooled Our African-American Sons to the Ivy League @2003, Random House and most recently The Power of a Virtuous Woman @2012.

Personally, I'm blessed by my extended family. In 1980 with the birth of their first grandchildren my parents began a tradition of gathering their children, their children's spouses and their grandchildren for dinner each Sunday after church. Attendance at Grandmother and GrandDad's Sunday dinners has grown to include nine grandchildren. We miss CMadison and Daddy, but we continue to be blessed by their memory and their legacy.
